A Happy Christmas.
May all things glad and fair and bright,
And every joy that's best,
Surround your pathway and unite
To make your future blest.

Loch Awe is a long, narrow and sinuous lake, situated in Mid Argyllshire, and measuring about 23 miles long, though nowhere reaching more than 1½ miles broad. Owing to this peculiar winding formation, extensive views of water are practically unobtainable, but nevertheless Loch Awe possesses many charms of its own which make its shores a favourite touring place for travellers in the Highlands. Kilchurn Castle, once a stronghold of the Macdonalds, is now nothing more than a ruin.
